- g) if there is a violation of the law, the disposal of their personal data that were being processed,
- h) the blocking of their personal data by withdrawal of consent before expiry of its validity if the manipulator processes personal data on the basis of their consent.

The request or information on personal data leakage or other material facts relating to the processing of personal data by the operator may be addressed to the operator, at the above address.

The Right to Access Personal Data

As the Person Concerned, you have the right to have the manipulator confirm that they are processing the personal data relating to you. If the manipulator processes your personal data, you have the right to access them and to get the further information about the purpose of processing your personal data, the category of the personal data processed, the information on who your personal data were intended to be transferred, in particular the recipient in a third country or international organization if possible; if the personal data are transferred to a third country or international organization, you have the right to be informed of the reasonable safeguards required by law, the retention period of the personal data; if this is not possible, at least information about the criteria of the purpose, information on the right to request the correction of your personal data, disposal of them or restricting their processing, or the right to object to the processing of personal data, to file a claim for the protection of personal data, the source of personal data if personal data have not been obtained from you, the existence of automated individual decision making, including profiling. Profiling is any form of automated processing of personal data that involves their use to evaluate certain personal aspects of a person, especially those related to work performance, capital, health, personal preferences, interests, reliability, behavior, location or movement. In such cases, the manipulator shall provide the person concerned with the information, in particular, on the procedure used and, on the significance, and implied consequences of such processing of the personal data for the person concerned. The manipulator is obliged to provide you with your personal data that it processes. For the repeated access to the personal data, the operator may charge a reasonable fee corresponding to administrative costs. The manipulator is obliged to provide the person concerned with personal data in the way the person concerned requested. The right to access the personal data must not have a negative impact on the rights of other natural persons.

Right to Rectify Personal Data

As the person concerned, you have the right to have the operator correct, without undue delay, the incorrect personal information that concerns you. Depending on the purpose of the personal data processing, you have the right to complete your incomplete personal data.

Right to Object to the Processing of Personal Data

You have the right to object to the processing of your personal data on grounds of your particular situation, if the manipulator is profiling or processing your personal information on the following legal bases:

- the processing of personal data is necessary to fulfill a task performed in the public interest or in the exercise of public authority entrusted to the manipulator,
- the processing of personal data is necessary for the purposes of the legitimate interests of the manipulator or third party. The manipulator may not further process your personal data unless they demonstrate the necessary legitimate interest in the processing of personal data that outweighs your rights or interests or the grounds for claiming.

You have the right to object to the processing of your personal data for the purpose of direct marketing, including profiling, to the extent that it relates to direct marketing. If you object to the processing of personal data for the purpose of direct marketing, the manipulator may not process personal data for the purpose of direct marketing. You have the right to object to the processing of your personal data for reasons relating to your particular situation if your personal data are processed for scientific purposes, for historical research or for statistical purposes, except where processing of personal data is necessary to fulfill tasks for reasons of public interest.

The Right to Disposal of the Personal Data

As the person concerned, you have the right to have the manipulator delete your personal data without undue delay. If you request the manipulator to delete your personal data, they must delete them in the following cases:

- a) personal data are no longer needed for the purpose for which they were obtained or otherwise processed,
- b) you revoke the consent under which the manipulator processes your personal data and there is no other legal basis for the processing of personal data,
- c) you will object to the processing of personal data and there are no legitimate reasons to process personal data or you will object to the processing of personal data for direct marketing, including profiling to the extent that it relates to direct marketing,
- d) personal data is processed illegally,
- e) the reason for disposal of the data is the fulfillment of the obligation laid down by law,
- f) personal data were obtained in connection with the offer of information society services pursuant to § 15 par. 1. Law. If the manipulator has disclosed your personal data and is obliged to dispose of them based on the above conditions, they are also obliged to inform other manipulators processing your personal data with regard to available technology and costs so that these manipulators delete links to your personal data and copies or depreciation .

The manipulator is not obliged to delete your personal data if they are necessary for:

- a) the exercise of the right to freedom of expression or the right to information,
- b) the compliance with an obligation of the law or an international treaty or for the performance of a task performed in the public interest or in the exercise of public authority entrusted to the manipulator,
- c) reasons of public interest in the area of health,
- d) the purpose of archiving, for scientific purposes, for the purpose of historical research or for statistical purposes, if disposal is likely to prevent or seriously hamper the attainment of the objectives of such processing, or
- e) for the claim of legal action.

The Right to Limit the Processing of Personal Data

You have the right to have the operator limit the processing of your personal data if:

- a) you object to the accuracy of your personal data; the manipulator will limit the processing of your personal data to verify its accuracy,
- b) the processing of your personal data is illegal and instead of deleting it you request to limit its use,
- c) the operator no longer needs personal data for the purpose of processing personal data, but you need them to claim the legal right, or
- d) you object to the processing of personal data,
- e) the manipulator limits the processing of your personal data until verification whether the legitimate reasons on the part of the manipulator outweigh your legitimate reasons. If the processing of personal data has been restricted, in addition to retention, personal data may only be processed by the manipulator with the consent of the person concerned or for the purpose of claiming the legal right, for the protection of persons or for reasons of public interest. The manipulator is obliged to inform you before the restriction on the processing of personal data is canceled.

Obligation to Report the Correction, Disposal or Restriction of the Processing of Personal Data

The manipulator is obliged to notify the recipient (everyone to whom your personal data has been provided) of the correction of your personal data, deletion of personal data or limitation of the processing of personal data, unless this proves impossible or does not require excessive effort. If required, the operator will inform you about these recipients.

The Right of Portability of Personal Data

You have the right to obtain the personal information that you have provided to the operator in a structured, commonly used and machine comprehensible format. At the same time, you have the right to transfer these personal data to another manipulator, if technically possible. Personal data are being processed either:

- a) on the basis of your agreement,
- b) or if they are necessary for the fulfillment of the contract to which you are a party or to implement the measure prior to the conclusion of the contract upon your request. This right must not negatively affect the rights of others. The exercise of the portability right is without prejudice to the right to disposal of the personal data. The portability right does not apply to the processing of personal data necessary for the performance of a task performed in the public interest or in the exercise of public authority entrusted to the manipulator.

Right to File an Application for the Protection of Personal Data

If you are directly affected by your rights under the General Data Protection Regulation, you have the right under Section 100 of this Act to submit a proposal to the Office for the Protection of Personal Data to initiate personal data protection proceedings.

The purpose of the procedure is to find out whether there has been a violation of the rights of natural persons in the processing of their personal data or whether there has been a breach of the law and, if the processing proves to be defective, to impose remedial measures or a fine for breach of law. The model form of the application is published on the website of the Office for the Protection of Personal Data. The application shall contain evidence in support of the claims made in the application and a copy of the document or other evidence proving the exercise of the right by the manipulator (right of access to personal data, right to request personal data rectification, right to delete or restrict the processing of personal data, right to oppose processing personal data, the right to the portability of personal data), if such a right has been exercised by the person concerned, or to indicate reasons worthy of special consideration of the non-exercise of the right in question.

The aforementioned rights (except for the right to initiate the proceedings on the protection of personal data) may be filed in person or by post in writing with the manipulator supervising the processing of personal data. The manipulator may also be notified of the leakage of personal data or other material facts relating to the processing of personal data by the manipulator.

If the person concerned suspects that their personal data are being processed unlawfully, they may file an application to initiate the proceedings on the protection of personal data with the Office for the Protection of Personal Data of the Slovak Republic, with its registered office at Hraničná 12, 820 07 Bratislava 27, Slovak Republic, or contact it through their website <http://www.dataprotection.gov.sk>.

If the person concerned does not have full legal capacity, their rights may be exercised by the legal guardian. If the person concerned does not live, a close person may exercise their rights under this law.

Except as otherwise provided by a separate law, the manipulator shall handle the request of the person concerned in accordance with the General Data Protection Regulation free of charge, except in the case of a payment that cannot exceed the amount of material costs incurred in connection with making copies. The manipulator is obliged to respond in writing to the person concerned within 30 days from the date of receipt of the request. The manipulator shall notify the person concerned and the Office for the Protection of Personal Data of the Slovak Republic in writing of the restriction of the right of the person concerned under the General Data Protection Regulation without undue delay.

The Manipulator has thus informed you as the person concerned about the protection of your personal data and instructed you about your rights regarding the protection of personal data within the scope of this written information duty.
